With the advent of new solutions and technologies, The Paul Gillrie Institute has developed new computer pricing schedules and current, effective rules and techniques to reach those prices. The price of any computer system is determined by the buyer's knowledge of the computer industry and his/her negotiating strategy.

- Our presenter will walk you through the processes of understanding and communicating with the DMS providers
- You will be able to analyze and reduce monthly computer expenses; identify unnecessary costs or over-billing
- You can bring your monthly bills and ask questions. Eighty percent of a dealer's expense is in the recurring monthly charges.
- Our presenter will instruct you in optimal negotiating strategy and how to use it to guarantee substantial discounts on both hardware costs and software maintenance "monthlies".

From the single-point owner to the mega-dealer, this seminar will help dramatically reduce computer costs. Presented in a clear, non-technical and entertaining manner, each attendee will exit the Gillrie presentation with the knowledge and confidence required to negotiate the right deal on the right terms. The objective is to equip all attendees with the tools to develop a long term plan for their dealership.

About Adam Gillrie,. After obtaining a degree at Tampa's University of South Florida. He began his career as a sales and networking consultant for a major computer retailer. Adam has been with the Paul Gillrie Institute for eleven years and has led hundreds of dealer clients through the minefield of dealership computer acquisition. Adam's status as a respected advisor to America's foremost automobile dealers is reaffirmed each time he is quoted in industry-tracking media.
